

A large gray rectangular area containing several horizontal white lines. One of these lines is highlighted with a black border, indicating it is an active input field. The lines are arranged in a nested fashion, with the highlighted line being the innermost.